INCREDIBLE CRUELTY.

Bonny Confirms the Reports of the Ill-Treatment Practiced by Barttelot.

He Was Murdered While Beating a Woman—A Native Boy Tortured to Death.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Times this morning publishes a three column signed statement from Bonny, who opens by regretting that Barttelot's brother forced the disclosure of the painful story. Bonny says Stanley only heard of poisoning suspicions from him on the 26th of October. Bonny says Barttelot and Jameson, after questioning the Arabs belonging to Stanley's previous expedition as to the fate of Pocock and others, expressed the opinion that Stanley would poison anybody. He admitted that rumors to that effect were current in Europe, but nothing was ever proved against Stanley.

Bonny confirms the report that Barttelot asked him for tasteless poison with which to remove Tippoo Tib's nephew, Selim, with whom he had quarreled. Bonny hid all the poisons. Barttelot did not make further attempts on the person of Selim.

Bonny confirms the statement that Barttelot deliberately hit a woman. For this Barttelot would have been lynched if Bonny had not succeeded in rescuing him. Bonny has not the slightest doubt that the boy Soudi died from the effects of a kick given him by Barttelot.

He confirms the statement that the mission boy, John Henry, who acted as interpreter, died from the effects of 300 lashes. He did not desert, as stated, but was left on the road. The boy was afraid to come back because he had sold Barttelot's revolver to procure food. The major recaptured the boy and had him publicly sentenced to be shot, not intending to carry out the sentence. The whole camp threatened to desert if the sentence was carried out. Barttelot exclaimed: "By God, I will give him 300 lashes!" Henry became insensible after receiving thirty lashes. The scene was the most horrible that he (Bonny) ever saw. Mortification set in, and the flesh of the victim fell in pieces to the ground. His body swelled to twice its ordinary size, and he died in twenty four hours.

Bonny tells of the unprovoked stabbing of Chief Ungunga by Barttelot with a penknife. He declares that the best of feeling prevailed in the village till the major arrived, when he immediately caused trouble by extravagant demands and threats. Bonny confirms several other allegations, and tells about the killing of a Zanzibari by Barttelot, who, after beating the man frightfully with a staff, smashed his skull with it. Barttelot, he says, projected an expedition of his own to reach Casati and not to go to Unrio.

Bonny confirms Stanley's account of the murder of Barttelot, except that Barttelot had not a cypress staff, but a revolver in his hand, and punched and kicked the woman. Bonny justifies the sentence to death of the Soudanese, Bourgon Mohammed, but states that Stanley is entirely correct in stating that Barttelot projected an expedition of his own, by which it was planned to reach Casati and not go to Unrio. Bonny threatened that he would enlist the assistance of the Arabs to defeat this plan, and therefore it was dropped. He never thought Stanley was dead. With regard to Stanley's charge against him with lack of initiative, Bonny says he is glad Barttelot's blood is not on his hands, as it would have been had he violently resisted and tried to stop Barttelot's doings. Had he done so, the whole camp so execrated the major that in the moment of the raising of Bonny's hand Barttelot would have been torn limb from limb.

Bonny admits that combined action might have succeeded, but the relations of the officers were too strained, and a single written protest would have made the protestor a marked man, and it was no slight matter to incur Barttelot's dislike.

Bonny declared that he had no doubt of the Jamieson story. Jamieson showed him the cannibalistic scene sketches and described it in detail. Six sketches are now in the possession of Jamieson's widow. They represent the tying up, killing and carving of a girl, the scrambling for pieces, and the cooking and feasting. Bonny declares he told Barttelot's brother of the whole proceeding, and if he had published the complete diary he would have thrown much light on the affair.

He says, in conclusion, that he can only believe that Barttelot was insane, and he thought it a pity that the dead man's relatives failed to take this charitable view.

A communication from Stanley appears in this morning's Times, in which he gives the name of the person who informed him of the Jamieson incident. He says that Jamieson said if such a charge was brought against him he would deny it. He also says a clergyman in London said he had seen a negro's head and neck, which Jamieson had sent home to be stuffed. Stanley adds that he could not have believed the story himself, had not Jamieson appeared to glory in the fact that he was the only white man who had seen cannibalism.

The Times calls upon the Barttelots and Mrs. Jamieson to publish everything in their possession, in order that the whole dreadful business may be cleared up.

The Emin relief committee publishes a denial of the statement that they desired to acquire Emin's ivory rather than to rescue Emin's life. The committee say they only stipulated that if the ivory was found it should be used to defray their expenses, but that none was found. The expedition cost them £14,350. Stanley gave his services gratis, besides throwing up engagements of the value of £10,000, and further generously placing at the disposal of the committee all sums which the press might pay for his letters on the expedition, which sums amounted to £2,000. Stanley was personally responsible for the selection of the members of his staff, and for the arrangements made with them.

LA GRIPPE ON DECK AGAIN.

It Has Made Its Appearance in Europe—Expected to Soon Arrive in America.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Leading physicians here view with alarm the reported reappearance of influenza at Vienna and other European points. In New York the health authorities state that a number of persons afflicted with the mysterious malady last winter had not yet recovered, and another disastrous epidemic is feared.

In Chicago the weather for the last month has been such as to breed the disease, but efforts are being made to suppress any cases reported. "Never has medical science been so completely at loss," said a prominent doctor to-day.

"No satisfactory diagnosis has yet been made of the so-called la grippe, and methods of treatment differ as widely as ever. It would seem as if the cure depends entirely on the constitution of the person afflicted, and medical skill is powerless in cases of enervated persons.

"If the disease appears again this winter, as seems only too probable, the death roll will largely exceed that of last year's. Sanitary precautions are of no avail apparently, and the cleanliness of the city contributes but little as a foil to the epidemic.

"A congress of the leading physicians of the country might be productive of good, but I hope for nothing until the mysterious germ whereby the disease is disseminated throughout the country is definitely located."

WESTMINSTER NEWS.

The Contest for the Mayor's Chair Promises to be Hot and Bitter—Found Drowned—A Monster Buck.

Special to THE COLONIST.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 10.—A man, name unknown, but supposed to hail from Vancouver, was found drowned at Port Moody, yesterday. No papers were found on him by which he could be identified, and it is not really known whether the case is one of suicide or not. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of "Found drowned," and the coroner ordered the body to be interred.

Hon. John Robson is in the city.

The fight for the mayor's chair, this year, promises to be very hot, and possibly bitter. Mayor Brown and ex-Mayor Townsend are in the field, and the friends of both parties are making the most of their men. Mayor Brown's health is very poor, and his physician urges him to withdraw, as he may not be able to stand the continued pressure for any length of time.

A monster buck, weighing 350 tons, was shot at Langley, a few days ago, by Murray, the well-known hunter. The animal is supposed to be the largest ever killed in this district, and, in consequence, it will be sent down to the Provincial Museum, in Victoria.

THE PERILS OF WHALING.

Six Men Swept Off a Steam Whaler Near Cape Lisbon, and Four Drowned.

A Boat's Crew Make Fast to a Whale in the Arctic and Carried to Their Grave.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—The steam whaler Norwhal and the whaling bark Charles W. Morgan, arrived from the Arctic Sea during the last forty-eight hours. Both vessels met with accidents which occasioned loss of life, yet neither of the captains made any mention of them. When off Cape Lisbon on a dark and squally night a wave swept over the Norwhal and carried six of her crew over board. The return of the wave carried two of the men back on board, but the other four were never seen again. Boat-header Warren's account of the story is to the effect that the steamer was under easy sail in a gale of wind, and when off Cape Lisbon, while lutling her, a sea came on board that carried nearly the whole watch overboard and nearly half of the bulwarks. Two of the men were swept back on board, but, although everything possible was done to save the others, they were drowned. The names of the men lost overboard were Frank Pezoro, Manuel Martin, John Campbell and Neil S. Peterson. The damage to the vessel was repaired while up north.

On the 1st of September last the Morgan lost a boat and a boat's crew. It was in the Sea of Okotsk, ninety miles off land, and blowing a gale. A whale rose a few hundred yards away from the ship and the boats were ordered out. Three boats were lowered, but the second mate's was the first to reach the whale. He made fast and the animal started to windward. When last seen the boat and the whale were a mile and a half away, with the boat still fast to the animal. That night it came on to blow and the boat was in all probability swamped. The crew say the second mate probably did not cut away for fear of being laughed at. He consequently held on until darkness cut him off from the ship. In the bow were H. Martin, second mate; Wm. H. Griffiths, boat steerer; Jas. Cook, Tom Stevenson, John Peters and Ben F. Hargrave, seamen. Cook and Hargrave were what is called "green hands," it being their first voyage. Cook has wealthy relatives in Iowa, and ran away from home because he could not get along with his step-mother. If the boat lived through the storm there would be a chance of the crew reaching land, as there was a week's provisions for each of the six men on board. The captains of both vessels are liable to a fine of $1,000 each for failing to report the accidents to the collector of the port.

Lord Salisbury's Speech at the Lord Mayor's Banquet in the Guildhall.

He Refers to the McKinley Bill, Disagreement with Portugal, and African Question.

THE EMIGRANT FRAUDS.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A despatch from Hamburg says the police have made extraordinary discoveries in regard to the frauds practised on emigrants shipped from that port to Brazil. Many emigrants supposed their destination was North America. Others who knew they were going to Brazil had been told the Pope of Rome would see them provided with land and houses. The guilty agents are being rigidly prosecuted.

FREE FARMS IN ROUMANIA.

The Roumanian government is alloting a vast quantity of state land free for farms to 15,000 peasant families.

THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET.

The Lord Mayor's banquet at Guildhall to-night was the equal of any of its predecessors in brilliancy. Lord Salisbury, in responding to the customary toast of the government, said he regarded as a good omen for the peace of the world the Czarwitch's coming visit to India as the guest of the Queen. The agreements in regard to Africa with France and Germany had strengthened England's relations with both these countries, and negotiations with Italy were progressing successfully. The efforts to adjust the disagreement with Portugal had been less successful, but the situation did not justify the apprehension which had been entertained in some quarters. The McKinley tariff in America would certainly affect some portion of British commerce. Free traders could rejoice in the result of the recent American elections as a protest against extravagant and selfish protectionism, but conclusions must not be rashly drawn. The prospect of a prohibitive tariff must still be faced. England had no tariff schemes. The premier expressed his opinion that the passage of an 8-hour law would result in giving a victory to the workingman.

TROOPS IN IRELAND.

The Secretary of War, the Hon. Edward Stanhope, says, in reply to Gladstone's statement that the number of troops in Ireland could be greatly lessened under home rule, that, on the contrary, it would be necessary to keep a much larger number there, should home rule be adopted; whereas under the present system of government the proportion of British troops on the island have been diminished from 42 per cent. of the army in 1838 to 28 per cent. under Gladstone's last administration and 26 per cent. at present.

Dishonest Broker Expelled.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A rare incident in the history of the stock exchange occurred last week. It was the action of a committee in expelling from the institution Percival Preston, a broker, for breach of faith with a client. It seems the client had ordered Preston to sell a large parcel of Mexican securities, but the broker, disregarding the interests of his client, first sold for himself, thus spoiling his client's market.

A Wonderful Steam Lifeboat.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Test's steam lifeboat, which has just been brought out in England, has proved remarkably satisfactory, the manoeuvering powers of the boat being admirable. Going at full speed, she made with the rudder half a circle in thirty-five seconds, and a full one in fifty seconds. Going slowly, with the rudder and turbine, a full circle was made in forty seconds, and with the turbine one in fifty-two seconds. By working levers on the deck, the boat was brought from full speed to a dead stop in thirty-two seconds. These tests show how entirely the boat is under the control of the officer on the deck, no communication whatever being necessary with the engine room, as the machinery always runs in one direction. The consumption of coal under forced draught is said to be little more than 200 pounds per hour, and the supply will last for thirty hours. The steam lifeboat is likely to come into general use on dangerous parts of the English coast.

Gen. Booth's Scheme Endorsed.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Archdeacon Farrar delivered an earnest address this morning at Westminster Abbey in support of the scheme of General Booth for the redemption of England's poverty-stricken masses. The announcement that the archdeacon would speak on the topic had attracted such a throng of people that after the abbey had been crowded to the utmost capacity thousands were turned away unable to gain admission. General Booth's novel and alluring plan is now one of the chief subjects of public interest. Twenty of the leading clergymen of Great Britain have signed an appeal to the people to raise the $5,000,000 which General Booth thinks would be required to successfully carry out the enterprise. Cardinal Manning said most of the Protestant bishops have endorsed the plan. The Prince of Wales has written to General Booth, heartily approving the scheme, which he described as "an intelligent and promising effort for the people, whose welfare is near my heart."

Canada's Atlantic Steamers.

GLASGOW, Nov. 9.—Much excitement has been created in shipping circles in England and Scotland by a cable dispatch from Quebec stating that the Canadian government had decided to subsidize a new line which will make the run from Halifax to Liverpool in less than five days, and that the contracts for building the new ocean greyhounds have already been given out in Glasgow.

The matter has been investigated, and it has been found that the contracts for building the vessels have been given out, but not in Glasgow. These fleet ships will be launched from the Douglas ship-yard, at Barrow-in-Furness, Lancashire. Douglas was for years manager of the famous Elder ship-yards, in Glasgow, probably the biggest ship-builders in the world. He left there to become manager of naval construction and armament for the company in Barrow. He has long had in mind the idea of building an Atlantic fleet to compete with the lines from Belfast and Glasgow.

A Continental "Jack the Ripper."

LEIPSIC, Nov. 9.—A continental "Jack the Ripper" was arrested in this city in the person of a carpenter by the name of Eisenschmidt. He has killed many girls in different parts of Saxony. He was surprised and arrested while about to commit another assault.

AMERICAN NEWS.

Drowned in a Well.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Catherine Farlin, aged 63, who lived with a family on Railroad avenue, was missed from the house this morning. A search was instituted and the dead body, clothed only in a night dress, was found at the bottom of a well in the yard. Mrs. Farlin had been acting very strangely for some time, and it is believed she threw herself down the well while suffering from a temporary aberration of mind.

A Petrified Corpse.

SUNBURY, Pa., Nov. 10—A petrified body was exhumed from the Sunbury cemetery to-day. James Sewall raised the body of his daughter, Ella, who was buried in 1887. It took seven men to lift the casket. The body is well preserved and as hard as marble. In life she was a brunette, but her hair has turned white. Even the flowers placed in the casket were turned to stone.

Some Good Election Yarns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—R. H. Graham, who has returned from McKinley's district, recounts some interesting features of the campaign. The Democrats sent out a number of young men with wagon loads of tinware to peddle from farm house to farm house, and asked exactly twice the value for buckets, pans and kettles. The house wives lifted their hands in holy horror and wanted to know why 25 cent buckets had doubled in price in so short a time, "The McKinley bill did it," was the cry in every instance. Of course it is unnecessary to say what the women thought of both Major McKinley and his bill. They naturally told their husbands. On the other hand the republicans had printed contracts for the purchase of all the sheep in the district, the purchase being made conditional on the election of McKinley. The price offered for sheep was $2 or $3 in excess of the real value, but this move was made too late and after the tin peddlers had pretty well covered the district and made the first impression.

The Dog Eat the Baby.

LEAD CITY, S. D., Nov. 10.—Guss T. Cartright, wife and child, have been living in a cabin six miles from Rockwood, where they were working a placer claim. The family recently got a Newfoundland dog. While the husband was away yesterday the wife had occasion to punish the dog, and immediately thereafter went down to a spring, 100 feet from the house. On returning she discovered that the dog had attacked the child in her absence, and literally eaten its head off. He was still crunching the bones of the skull, and the brains of the little one were dropping on the ground. The dog was still fiercely growling. The mother gave a piercing shriek and fell senseless to the ground. She is now a raving maniac.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

Fire in the Baldwin.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—At exactly 4 o'clock this morning an alarm was turned in for a fire in the Baldwin hotel. The firemen upon arriving at the scene found that a smothered fire was filling the hotel with smoke which came from the basement. The guests in the hotel were immediately notified, and the announcement of fire caused the greatest excitement. Many of the lady guests of the hotel fainted from fright. The fire in the basement was finally reached. It originated in the electrician's room from crossed wires setting fire to cotton batting and then to the woodwork in the basement. The loss will amount to less than $1,000.

Alaska Steamer Change.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—The Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamer Yaquina, which plied between this city and Santa Cruz, will leave for Port Townsend on November 12, to take the place of the same company's steamer Mexico on the line between Townsend and Alaska.

THE OCEAN TERMINUS OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

PORT CRESCENT.

A FEW UNDENIABLE FACTS:

The Victoria, Port Crescent and Chehalis Railway has several camps of men engaged on clearing the right of way of the first section of the line, and the whole will be completed by the 31st December, 1891. This will make Port Crescent the terminus of the strongest corporation on the American Continent. Work on the breakwater is progressing rapidly, about 150 feet being already run out, and will be completed during next year; the Harbor will then accommodate 120 ships, allowing one cable (see Minard on Harbors) to each merchant vessel in which to swing, not including twice that number which might be tied up to wharves. Port Crescent will then be possessed of the safest harbor on the Straits and as good as the best on Puget Sound. The soundings on the Company's Map are guaranteed to be correct.

More than 3,000,000 acres of the richest land in the State of Washington, lying to the West and Southwest, are directly tributary to Port Crescent.

It is confidently predicted that in ten years the population of Port Crescent will rival that of Tacoma and Seattle combined.

We strongly recommend to our friends and the public generally the advisability of securing a few lots at present prices. Lots, that to-day can be bought for hundreds, will be worth in a few months as many thousands. We have a limited number of choice lots at present on sale.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

The Chinese Murder Case Before a Coroner's Jury, Yesterday.

Thomas Haughton (foreman), G. L. Simpson, Julius Barron, A. Barnett, H. A. Potts and William Herbert formed the jury empanelled by Coroner Morrison, to investigate the circumstances attending the death of the Chinaman, Fong Ah Tong. They met at 2 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, in the police court room, and, being duly sworn, proceeded to Storey's undertaking rooms, where the body of the dead man was viewed. On their return to the City Hall, they found the building surrounded by a crowd of interested Chinamen, who, however, were refused admission to the court room during the hearing of the case. The prisoner, Fong Ling Din, who is a nephew of the murdered man, was placed in the dock as soon as the names of the jurors had been called, and the information of R. H. Walker, of the city police, charging him with the murder, was read, and interpreted to him. With quivering lips, he replied in English that he did not commit the crime, and then buried his face in his hands and gave way to his emotion. Mr. F. G. Walker immediately after, entered, and announced himself as appearing in the case for the defence, and the examination of witnesses was at once proceeded with.

Officer R. H. Walker, sworn, said that on Saturday, November 8th, he received a message by telephone from the residence of Mrs. Milligan, corner of Kingston and St. Lawrence streets, to the effect that an officer was wanted. On arriving at the house, found Mrs. Milligan, Mrs. Raymur and Miss Lawson, and the prisoner Ling standing at the front door. Mrs. Milligan said that her Chinaman and another one had had a fight in the kitchen. She also said that she had seen another Chinaman with hers in the kitchen at 11 o'clock in the morning. She had attempted to enter the kitchen when the row was in progress, but could not get in, as the door was locked. Witness asked prisoner what was the matter. He replied that one Chinaman had come to him and wanted money. Witness then asked him where that Chinaman was now, and prisoner replied that he had "gone to town." He (witness) then enquired of prisoner if he knew where the Chinaman lived, and he said yes, he would see him in the evening. Asked prisoner if he was hurt much; he said "no," his nose bled a little, that was all. There was blood on his face, on one wrist, and on his pants and stockings. Mrs. Milligan asked him (witness) to go downstairs to the kitchen, and see that the other Chinaman had gone away; she said that she was afraid he might return and create more trouble. Went down stairs, accompanied by prisoner. On reaching the bottom of the stairs leading into the kitchen, found the floor of that room flooded with water. On one part of the floor, where it appeared to be the lowest, there was considerable blood. Prisoner picked up a broom and began to sweep the water out. There was blood on the side of the kitchen door, and also on the wall opposite the door. Witness then proceeded to the door leading out of the house into the backyard. Searched two sheds in the rear, but could find no person. Returned to the kitchen; found a door, behind the kitchen door, leading into a passage way. Tried this door and found it locked. Asked prisoner if he had the key; he said yes. Told him to open the door, which he refused to do. He said, "no Chinaman there, him all gone to town." Then told him that he must open the door; took the key from his pocket and opened the door. He (prisoner) walked in, through the door and up the passage ahead of witness. There was a turn in the passage way, and at the far end a bathroom, on the right hand side. Prisoner opened the bathroom door, and witness looked in. Then both came back along the passage way. After making the turn, witness noticed a door on the right hand side, coming out. Asked prisoner if that was his room, he said yes. Tried the door and found it locked. Prisoner refused to open it, and again said "no Chinaman there, him gone to town." Compelled him to open the door, and on going into the room found the bed pulled out. Looked behind the bed, then came back to the front, and got down and looked under it. It was so dark that nothing could be seen at first; put his (witness') hand under the bed and caught a person by the leg. Then looked under again and saw a man's foot. There was a Chinaman's shoe on the foot. Reached up and caught the body by the leg, and pulled it out. It was that of a dead Chinaman. When pulling the body out saw a large butcher knife, (produced), all wet with blood. The knife was close to the head of the body, under the bed. Picked up the knife and then asked Mrs. Milligan, who was upstairs, to telephone to the police station that there had been a murder committed. Immediately took hold of the prisoner, led him into the kitchen and handcuffed him. Asked prisoner if he killed the man; he replied, "Yes, me kill him." Mrs. Milligan came down stairs immediately after; she asked him also if he had killed the man, and he said "No, me very good man; me no kill him." Sat prisoner down on a chair, and a short time after Mr. Milligan arrived, then Officers Redgrave and Levin, and afterwards Supt. Sheppard. Searched the prisoner, but found nothing of consequence on him. In a box in the passage, found a pair of stockings and a pair of slippers, both damp with blood. The stove alongside the box in the passage way was covered with blood. An apron, also damp, was in the kitchen window. Another apron (also produced, and also bearing blood marks) was hanging on the wall. Two coats (produced), blood stained, were taken out of a box belonging to Mr. Milligan by Officer Redgrave. Another pair of socks and a shirt, bloody, were taken off the prisoner in the city lock-up. The pair of pants which prisoner had also removed in the jail were blood stained. When witness found the body, the head was nearly severed from the body; the corpse was still soft and warm. In prisoner's room, all under the bed was blood, the sheets were bloody, and there was blood on the side of the bedstead. On the knife referred to, found wet blood and hair.

To the foreman of the jury—There was not the slightest mark on the prisoner's body.

Dr. Milne deposed to examining the body of Fong Ah Tong. He described the wound in the neck, almost severing the head from the body. There were also wounds in the jaw and head. One wound appeared to have been caused by a downward blow on the back of the head, which cut into the skull. The wounds were sufficient to cause death.

Mrs. Milligan was the next witness called. She told of engaging in a conversation with prisoner, who was a domestic in her employ, between 2 and 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. He came up from the kitchen with some dishes; was talking and laughing, and then went down-stairs again. A few minutes later she heard the sound of quarrelling in the kitchen, followed by that of a heavy body falling, and then a groan. She tried to go into the kitchen to ascertain what was the matter, but found the door locked. She then ran into Mrs. Raymur's, next door, and Miss Lawson and Mrs. Raymur's Chinaman returned with her to the house. They went around to the back door and tried it, but found it locked. There was a little blood on the door. Miss Lawson then telephoned for the police. They were going to try again to get into the kitchen, when the prisoner came out. He was trembling and evidently much agitated. Witness told him they had sent for the police, and he did not like it. He said, "I thought you my friend." He then commenced to clean up the kitchen, in which witness saw considerable blood, but no water. Half an hour before saw a strange Chinaman in the kitchen; he was the same man that she saw in the morning, a man considerably older than the prisoner and wearing coarse, threadbare clothes. Prisoner did not have on the same clothes that he wore when he brought the dishes upstairs a short time before. She went downstairs with Constable Walker when he arrived, a few minutes later. Heard the prisoner say that the Chinaman had gone away, and also heard him refuse to open the door; though he afterwards did so. Went no further than the kitchen with Officer Walker. He called out to her, apparently from prisoner's room, that he had found the body of a murdered Chinaman, and asked her to telephone to the police station.

T. S. Milligan was also sworn and identified the knife produced by Officer Walker as one in use in his kitchen, and belonging to him. The prisoner has been in his employ about three months.

This closed the case for the Crown, and the jury retired for about ten minutes, returning with the following verdict:—

In the inquest on the body of Fong Ah Tong, and having heard all the evidence brought before us, your jury have arrived at the following verdict: "From the evidence brought before us we do strongly believe that Fong Ling Din is guilty of the murder of Fong Ah Tong, and we do forthwith order his arrest and committal for trial."

The only two Chinamen in the court room during the afternoon were two friends of the deceased, who were ready to give their evidence if it was asked for. They stated to the court interpreter, Ah Wing, that the dead Chinaman, an uncle of Ling, had given the latter $20 on going to Ladner's to work a few months ago, to be placed in the bank. He also claimed to have sent $150 more from Ladner's to be deposited. On coming back to Victoria he found that neither sum had been placed in the bank, and he told these friends that he was going over to Ling's on Saturday morning, and would stay there till he got his money, as he wanted to go back to China.

THE MINERS' CASE.

The Men Called up for Sentence, but Judgment Withheld on a Legal Point.

Discussion on the Points at Issue—Besetting the Pit an Illegal Act.

Yesterday, before Chief Justice Begbie, the case of the miners at Wellington convicted of having beset Joseph B. Hugo and endeavoring to prevent him doing what he had a lawful right to do, was brought up. The men, Carter, Greenwell, Berto, Suggett, Melzer and Van Endriche, having been called,

Hon. Mr. Davie regretted to say that he had been compelled to move for judgment in this case. The defendants had been convicted on the thirtieth of September last, under an indictment charging them with intimidation, under the Act, viz., intimidating and besetting No. 5 shaft, in order to compel Joseph B. Hugo to abstain from working, which he had a right to do. After their conviction the court had taken a merciful, and what he deemed to be a proper, view of the case, allowing the men to remain out on their own recognizances, telling them that, on notice to him of any act on their part in violation of the law, they would be called up before the court for sentence. On behalf of the Crown, he would say that he had fully hoped that there would be no such necessity; indeed no attempt would have been made to call them up for sentence had it not been deemed necessary for the preservation of law and order. Since the conviction of the accused the processions had been continued, but it was not till recently that the defendants had taken part in them. Latterly, however, the men had formed—among them the defendants—and had paraded in front both of the works and of the houses of the men who were working at the Wellington mines. These processions had been of almost daily occurrence—they had been clearly watching and besetting, practically repeating the offence of which they had been convicted. The Crown had nothing to do with this more than to move that the sentence of the law be passed upon them. He should call on the officers to testify as to what had been going on.

Officer David Stephenson, of Wellington, testified that he knew the defendants. There had been processions at Wellington since the conviction of the defendants, and on October 21st he had noticed in the procession Joseph Berto, Stephen Metzler, John Suggett, John Greenwell and Joseph Carter. The procession formed at three o'clock p.m., at which hour the men came out of the pit. There were about 150 men working and about 110 men in the procession. They assembled near the railway track, and then went through North Wellington to South Wellington to within 100 yards of No. 3 shaft. On their return they went the same way. They passed right by the dwelling-houses, and some of them by that of Joseph Hugo. They carried their usual banners. On October 27th all the defendants were there, there being about about 100 men in the procession. The same proceedings were repeated on October 29 h, 31st, November 3rd, November 5th and November 7th, four of them being present on the 5th, and five on the 7th. These processions took place on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. He never saw them in the procession before the 21st October, nor did they go through the camp.

Mr. Wilson inquired what was the object of these proceedings.

The Chief Justice—There is a motion to have the defendants punished.

Mr. Wilson—Should not the counsel be confined to the matter found in the indictment?

The Chief Justice—What is now being proved has everything to do with it, the court not knowing what punishment to mete out to the prisoners who had been convicted. No violence to the person had been proved against the men on their trial, and he had therefore suspended sentence. What he wished to know now was, whether or not there was danger, and in this way he should be able to ascertain that. He wished to know whether a crime had been committed; what was its nature and what were the acts of the men with whom the defendants associated. In this way he should be able to satisfy himself as to what to do.

Mr. Wilson—That would be to punish these men for the crimes of others.

The Chief Justice—No; it is to ascertain whether the effect of their conduct has been to promote lawlessness amongst the mob.

Officer Bloomfield corroborated the testimony of Officer Stevenson.

Hon. Mr. Davie said this was all the evidence the Crown had to offer, and he submitted that the conduct which had been shown to have been theirs proved that unless the processions were stopped there could not fail to be a conflict.

In answer to the Chief Justice, it was stated that at the present there was only one militia officer at Wellington. At first, there had been 25 militia men and 25 volunteers.

Mr. Wilson submitted that this court had no jurisdiction in this matter. When the case came up the Chief Justice was presiding over a court of Oyer and Terminer, which rose without an adjournment. There was now only one course to take, viz., to move the case into the Supreme Court for judgment. The court of Oyer and Terminer and general gaol delivery had adjourned sine die. The commission authorizing its session then came to an end, and the judge who then presided had no jurisdiction to sentence these men.

Mr. Davie contended that until sentence was pronounced on conviction the trial had not come to an end, the sentence being part of the trial. He cited English and other authority in support of this contention, holding furthermore that the court had power to adjourn from time to time.

The Chief Justice said that the question was a serious one. The same kind of question was raised in the case of the Hammersmith Enquiry, Law Reports 5, Queen's Bench.

Mr. Davie argued that, under the statute, the Supreme court had now cognizance of the case.

After some further discussion,

The Chief Justice continued that, on the 30th September, he could not tell what exact punishment the public interest demanded, because as he had said that up to that time no act of violence to person or property had been committed, though the situation appeared to be dangerous. He had said that, by deferring sentence, he should be able to judge what the public danger was. He expected that the counsel for the defence would, no doubt, allege that these processions were not against the statute, nevertheless there were acts committed that were liable to provoke a breach of the peace. It was by no means likely that 200 free laborers, who were earning their bread by the honest sweat of their brow, would allow themselves to be led, to be controlled in fact, by men who were living in worse than idleness—upon charity—on money contributed by men who were bound to and by the union. It was absurd to say that these union men intended to persuade men who knew that they were free and unfettered, and that all the force of Canada would be exercised to vindicate their right to work. How would counsel for the defendants like to be in the place of the working miners?

Mr. Wilson—I should laugh.

The Chief Justice—Perhaps so, but laboring men have not the sense of humor that Mr. Wilson has. He desired to call attention to the declaration of Mr. Champion, one of the great leaders of the dock laborers, and who has since gone to Australia, trying to restrain the mob. He said that in a country governed by free and democratic institutions, the members of unions should not only obey and respect, and uphold the law, but declare to be rebels all who do not act in this manner. Nothing could be more unfair than for men to claim the protection of the law and deny it to their neighbors. They were protected in all lawful ways, and, as long as there was a law of order, it must be obeyed—if necessary by keeping volunteers under arms, and by sending evil-doers to gaol, and in this way restraining them.

Mr. Wilson—The processions are most harmless.

The Chief Justice—I don't think so. The holding of them is clearly an offence, for which a magistrate can send the parties to gaol if he does his duty. No idle fellows must, in any way, be allowed to molest industrious men.

The Chief Justice—I decline to pass sentence now, because I am not sure that I have a right. Will the counsel for the defence endeavor to impress on his friends the necessity of their not endeavoring to oppress other workingmen?

Mr. Wilson—They are not idle men.

The Chief Justice—They are idle, and in their course sail as near the wind as they can. They do not show a spirit of manliness. On the contrary, I thought at first very meanly of them. They knew they were doing what was wrong, and instead of saying that they did not do wrong, or did not know they were doing wrong, when they were brought up, they defied the law. They came here not as martyrs; but said prove it!

Mr. Wilson—They said, We did not wish to intimidate, we did not parade to show our strength, but they wanted to show their moral force.

The Chief Justice said that he should be inclined to say that the party who spoke in this way was talking nonsense. He went on to say that it seemed to him that if a court, like the one in question were not adjourned DE DIE IN DIEM it fell. He did not wish to send the accused to prison or inflict a fine. He should allow them their liberty, but let them take care not to break the law.

Mr. Wilson said he would take care to instruct his clients to let the processions cease. They were decent men in their way.

Mr. Davie intimated that he should not trouble more with the case, if the processions ceased.

The Chief Justice remarked that the verdict of the jury had been a valuable decision. It was an illegal act to beset a pit; such acts must be stopped or steps would have to be taken to bring the men before the Full Court for sentence. These provokings by a procession were a direct challenge to a breach of the peace. If the case came up again he thought it should be before the Full Court, the men remaining out on their own recognizances.

VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS.

We have received, by the last English mail, the following letter, which contains suggestions of the utmost value to the canners and growers of fruit in British Columbia:

"To THE EDITOR:—We see per various notices in your issues, that fruit can be profitably grown in Southern British Columbia. If your growers conclude to go into the fruit packing trade, allow us to suggest that, in order to get a footing into the canned fruit trade of Europe, they should insert more fruit and less syrup than is done by the Californians, and the fruit should be carefully selected, unspotted, unstained, ripened to the necessarily precise mature yellowness, nothing more, nothing less.

"Seeing that tin plate will be cheaper in Canada than in the States, it might be profitable to pack the fruit in assorted sizes, viz., 1 lb. tins and 2½ lb tins.

"We shall be glad to give any required information to any of your correspondents on the subject.

"Yours truly,
"SIMPSON, ROBERTS & Co.,
"Canned fruit and salmon importers."
46 Stanley street,
Liverpool, Oct. 25, 1890.

This is one of the many indications that the resources and capabilities of British Columbia are beginning to be known and appreciated, both in Great Britain and Eastern Canada. It is to be hoped that fruit canning and fruit growing will receive that attention in this province which its importance demands. There is in the East a market for all the fruit which British Columbia can raise.

THE BYE-ELECTION.

The result of the election in the Westminster District has not been a surprise to anyone. It was believed from the outset that the contest would be between Mr. Sword and Mr. Ladner, and that the chances were in favor of Mr. Sword. As the contest was between three Independent and one Opposition it was very singular, indeed, that the Opposition candidate was so signally defeated. The District at the general election of 1886 returned two Opposition candidates. It might be expected that the Opposition would have sufficient strength left in the constituency to return their man when there were three Independents contending against him. An active and a united minority could not ask for a better chance than was afforded the Opposition in the Westminster contest. It had only one man in the field, while the Independents, pledged to give the Government a fair support, had three. By concentrating their strength on one candidate, even though they were in a minority, they stood an excellent chance of electing him. But so much have the Opposition lost in the District, and so completely demoralized are they, that they did not even make an attempt to contest the election. Their candidate may be said to have had no party support at all. It is more than probable that the sixty votes which Mr. Greer polled were given him on personal rather than on party considerations. It is very significant that the two avowed Opposition candidates who presented themselves for election in what was four years ago the New Westminster District, polled so few votes that they forfeited their deposit money. Mr. Orr and Mr. Greer were completely snowed under. This shows where the Opposition stand in the District.

We see that the News-Advertiser speaks of the result as "a great victory." A victory over whom? Over poor Mr. Greer? That was not much to boast of. It could be seen from the first that Mr. Greer was not in a position to make much of a fight. There was a victory over the Opposition certainly, but the News-Advertiser appeared at one time as if it intended to throw in its lot with the Opposition. It is quite evident that its sympathies are in that direction and that, if it does not join Mr. Beaven's corporal's guard, it is because its editor is ambitious to be a leader and not a follower. If the victory then is a great one it is a victory over the Irreconcilables who are determined to place themselves in opposition to the Government, whether its policy is wise or unwise, whether it does right or does wrong. If we read the signs aright the editor of the News Advertiser belongs to this faction and hopes to be its leader. That Mr. Sword has no idea of joining the Irreconcilables, whether headed by Mr. Beaven or Mr. Cotton his declarations during the canvass abundantly show. At one of the meetings he said that:

"He would support Mr. Robson and his Government in all the good measures which would be submitted to the Assembly. It was folly for any one to say that he was opposed to the present Government, for that meant, no matter how important or beneficial its measures were to the country, it must be opposed."

From this we conclude that Mr. Sword will be opposed to the Irreconcilables, by whatever name they may be called, and that he will give the Government his support in all measures which he considers advantageous to the province. As all the candidates, who obtained any votes worth mentioning, found it necessary to make similar declarations, it is fair to presume that the constituency, which chose the Hon. Mr. Robson for its representative, would not elect a man who declared himself as Mr. Greer did, irrevocably opposed to the Government of which he is the leader. The "Independent Party," of which the Advertiser boasts so loftily and so frequently, has as yet no existence. When it is organized it may have a policy, and not before. To talk about the policy of a party which has neither head, body, nor tail, is to give utterance to the most unmitigated nonsense.

A LAME EXCUSE.

The News-Advertiser finding that in condemning the sea route between Victoria and Vancouver it condemned Vancouver as an ocean port, tries to get out of the hole into which it has deliberately inserted itself, by saying that it's recommendation of the Nanaimo route to Victoria was nothing but a trap to catch THE COLONIST. This is the lamest excuse for a grossly stupid blunder we ever remember to have seen. In order that our readers may see for themselves the kind of traps which the News-Advertiser sets for its contemporaries, we will quote what it said on the subject of changing the route between Vancouver and Victoria. In its issue of Thursday last, in a leading article under the head of "What it (the fog) has shown," the editor of the News-Advertiser said:

"The fog which has hung so heavily along this coast for hundreds of miles during the last week or ten days, has shown one thing very conclusively—that the most reliable route for regular and frequent communication between Victoria and the Mainland is that via Nanaimo. During the whole of that time the mail steamer between Vancouver and Nanaimo arrived and departed on time, not a single trip being missed, while the service between Vancouver and Victoria was badly demoralised. If it was a long distance, and only traversed at infrequent intervals, say of a week or even more, interruptions by fog would not be so noticeable, since it is only at long intervals that the atmospheric conditions are such as to cause the fog to remain for a considerable period. But, where the distance is only about eighty miles by the shortest route, and a daily or even a more frequent service is necessary, anything which will practically assure the regularity of the communication is of the greatest importance."

Who would imagine that the writer of this serious paragraph was practising a joke on his readers, and that he did not believe a word of what he had written—that it was all a lie of a very elaborate kind, fabricated for the purpose of entrapping THE COLONIST, into what? Showing that the News-Advertiser is a blunderer of phenomenal stupidity. To its stupidity the Advertiser now, by its own confession, adds falsehood and insincerity. The trap story is so evidently an after-thought, resorted to to account for and excuse its outrageous blunder, that no one of the least intelligence will believe one word of it. Assuming it to be true, it shows that the editor has no regard for sincerity or truth, and that he is ready, in order to serve a purpose of his own, and one that is incredibly silly, to practice upon the credulity of his readers — to make dupes of them. But we do not suppose for a moment that the editor of the Advertiser was not sincere when he penned the passage that we have quoted, and more, we are morally certain, he considered himself wonderfully clever. He no doubt plumed himself upon having pitched into Victoria so slyly and so adroitly. When he discovered from THE COLONIST the obvious conclusion to which his pretty little theory led, he was no doubt a greatly surprised and a much mortified man. In order to avert the indignation of his justly incensed Vancouver readers he resorted to the very old and stale trick of discomfited schemers and exposed blunderers by declaring "it was all a joke." The reader who can find anything jocular—the very faintest scintilla of humor—in the passage we have quoted would see something ludicrous in a funeral sermon. The truth is, the editor of the News-Advertiser has found out that he has pronounced the severest possible condemnation of Vancouver as an ocean port, and he is at his wit's end to get out of the scrape he has blundered into.

A WIDE DIFFERENCE.

The latest accounts confirm the report that the Democrats have won a sweeping victory in the United States. The Democratic majority will constitute considerably more than two-thirds of the House of Representatives. This is an almost unexampled majority. In the Forty-third Congress, under General Grant, the Republicans had a majority of 100, a little more than two-thirds. In the Forty-fourth and Forty-eighth Congress, the Democrats had a majority of 77 and 74 respectively, but they never had so complete a command of the House as they will have after the 4th of March next.

Although the people of the United States have expressed their wishes so forcibly, their will cannot be carried into effect. The members just elected have no more power than the same number of private citizens. Not only will there be no change in the administration consequent upon the election that has just been held, but the House which the country has condemned so generally will have another session, and it has the power to pass laws which are opposed to the will of the people, and all that the majority and their representatives can do is to look helplessly on. They have not even the satisfaction of knowing that they can, when they are allowed to legislate, repeal the laws which the discredited House may pass. No matter how much the country may disapprove of the legislation which Congress may pass at its next session, the new House cannot undo what is done, for the Republican Senate, and the Republican President have the power to set aside every law they may enact. The people of the United States have, in short, invested a few men with power, which is, for a time, far greater than their own.

The House of Representatives has no way of compelling the President and the Senate to act in accordance with the will of the nation. Votes of want of confidence mean nothing in the House, in which the sovereign people of the United States are supposed to be represented. This is a state of things which the subjects of Queen Victoria either at home or in any of the colonies find it difficult to understand. Under the British constitution, whenever the people at the polls give expression to their will, all that it remains for the three Estates of the Realm to do is to give effect to the well understood wishes of the people. A British Administration with such a majority against it in the popular branch of the Legislature as is now against the Administration of Mr. Harrison would make all the haste it could to hand over the reins of power to the men in whom the people had expressed confidence.

The Westminster By Election.

Opening the Season.

Invitations have been issued by the Married Ladies' Club, one of the most popular social organizations of last season, to an "At Home" in Philharmonic hall, this evening. The club is almost the same as last year's, and to-night is expected to be full of pleasure for those who attend the dance.

To Take Action.

Mr. T. R. Smith, assistant commissioner of the Hudson's Bay Co., went over to Westminster this morning to enquire into further details of Capt. Dunn's death. The company's legal advisers, Messrs. Davie & Bodwell, will very shortly commence action for damages from the corporation of the Royal City.

The P. O. Orphanage.

Collectors will, this week, make their annual call on behalf of the Home, which now shelters about fifty children. Increased accommodation has, during the year, been provided, and as the institution is entirely supported by voluntary contribution, the liberal support hitherto extended will, no doubt, be continued and probably increased.

"The Golden Sheaf."

The Cantata of "The Golden Sheaf," which was so successfully performed in connection with the Sunday school of Pandora street Methodist church, will be repeated on Thursday under the same auspices and in the same place. There will be no charge for admission, but a collection will be taken up to cover the expenses incurred, as well as for the objects of the Sunday school.

St. Andrew's Church Social.

On Wednesday evening, a social will be given by the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, for which extensive preparations have been made, and the affair is expected to come off in a highly successful manner. Previous entertainments in connection with this church have been very successful, and it is, with pleasurable expectations, that this congregational event is looked forward to.

Narrow Escape.

Yesterday afternoon, about five o'clock as Sergeant Langley was in the court house in connection with the miners' case, he received a telephone message that a man had been drowned at the wharf. He hurried to the point indicated, accompanied by Officer McNeill, where he found a man lying stretched in a row boat that was tied to the ship near Turner, Beeton's wharf. He had a bottle of whisky in his hand, which he was rapidly disposing off, accompanying the operation with uproarious shouts. The wind was blowing very high and the boat was in imminent danger of being swamped. The man was with difficulty rescued by the officers and properly taken care of.

Our Local Amateurs.

Wednesday evening will see the production of two comedies new to Victoria audiences. "Ruth's Romance" is a delightful little comedietta, fresh and sparkling, and with sufficient plot to make it thoroughly entertaining. "Meg's Diversion," the more serious item of the programme, is from the pen of one of the best English dramatists, H. T. Craven. Both comedies will give play-goers an opportunity of judging the acting powers of three new aspirants to histrionic fame, namely, Mr. E. C. Carpenter, Mr. E. Percy Whalley and Mr. H. L. Austin. Apart from the cathedral fund, the performance alone should command a good house. The box plan opened yesterday, and a good business was done. Mr. Frederic Adderley is working hard to secure another success.

A Chapter of Runaways.

Yesterday, and the day before, were fruitful in runaways. One, in which a horse, a cart and two men were principally concerned, started from the corner of Government and Yates streets, the cause being a dog. The equipage, owned by the B. C. Cattle Co., dashed down Yates street to the corner of Langley, where a lady pedestrian happened to be in the way. The man in the cart made a frantic effort to prevent a collision, with the result that the cart bounced into the windows of Moore & Co.'s drug store. No one seriously injured, but damages between $100 and $200 to pay for. Mr. Dalby's express wagon, and the accompanying horse, made a dash out of the E. & N. railway station, yesterday. The runaway took the sidewalk a short distance up Store street, and the driver was thrown out and very badly bruised. Another runaway occurred on Government street at about the same hour, noon, in which minor damage was done.

The Old, Old Story.

Last night the cable between the Island and the Mainland was again out of repair, and the few despatches received by THE COLONIST came via Port Townsend. Victoria newspaper and business men, as a rule, are patient, but everything has its limit.

"True as Steel" Company.

The "True as Steel" company, under the management of H. H. Saxton, now making its third tour of the United States, is billed for Victoria theatre on Thursday and Friday nights. "True as Steel" is a four-act melodrama of great strength, and the leading part is taken by Frank Thorn, an actor of note, who has won fame in the role of Bill Simmonds.

Reg. v. Richard Bell.

In the Provincial Court yesterday morning the case of Reg. v. Richard Bell, charged under sec. 12, C. S. C., chap 173, with "using violence to compel abstinence from the exercise of legal right," came up for hearing before Edwin Johnson, Q.C., S.M. Mr. B. W. Pearse was the only material witness in the action. John Colbert was also sworn, but his testimony had no very important bearing on the issue. The accused was committed for trial; bail being accepted. Bell in $100 and one surety of $50. Mr. F. G. Walker represented the Crown; Mr. S. P. Mills the defence.

A New Enterprise.

W. H. Pennock, late senior partner in the firm of Pennock & Clayton, manufacturing jewellers, is about to make a trip to purchase an entire new stock, including "new novelties for the X'mas trade," and will purchase an improved outfit for his factory. He will open up his new store (at present occupied by Alsop & Mason) by the first week in December. Mr. Pennock, who is a practical manufacturer of jewellery, hopes by his improved machinery and prompt attention to business to give the greatest satisfaction to any work that may be entrusted to him. *1w

Sons of St George.

A goodly number of the members of the above society were in attendance at the rooms, corner Government and Bastion streets, last evening, a smoking concert being the programme. Mr. Hookaway presided at the piano, and songs were rendered by Messrs. Jones, Churton, King, Gilbert, Ely, Brown, Kent, Potts, Penketh, Wills, Selleck and Martin; recitations by G. W. R. Lee and C. B. Lockhart, musical selections by Messrs. Brown and Hookaway, and a step dance by Mr. King. A pleasant evening was spent, which the members propose to repeat at no very distant date.

Chinese Evicted at Aberdeen.

A large body of masked men, about fifty in number, called on the Chinese residents of Aberdeen, a little town in Washington, on Saturday last, and told them all to pack up and leave the town. Nearly all were masked. The men broke open the doors, pistol and candle in each hand, marched the Chinese down to the steamer Wishkath Chief and sent them to Montesano. One Chinaman, John Wing, was badly hurt, kicked and bruised, and left on the wharfs at Montesano perfectly helpless. The Post-Intelligencer says: Prosecuting Attorney Moody is getting out indictments against a large number of citizens of Aberdeen.

The Week of Prayer.

The following being the week of prayer in connection with Young Men's Christian Association work, appropriate sermons were preached in a number of the Protestant churches on Sunday. In the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, a special meeting was held in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, when spirited and effective addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. Cochrane, of Brantford, J. W. Church, of Corrig school, and Revs. M. L. Rugg, Archdeacon Scriven, D. Fraser, Dr. Reid and Coverdale Watson, the latter, in his evening sermon in Pandora Street church, speaking in a most outspoken manner against the saloons, gambling houses and places of debauchery which flourished in the city.

He Brought Back His Man.

Officer W. McNeil, of the provincial police, returned from Rocky Point, on Sunday, having in custody the colored man Dorcey, who is wanted for assaulting an old man in the Colonial hotel, not long ago. He will be handed over to the city police this morning. Dorcey had made a big boast that he was not to be taken by half-a-dozen policemen, and he had a loaded rifle, a shot gun and a revolver, all ready for business, in his house when arrested. The officer went prepared for a lively time, and as soon as he opened the door covered Dorcey with a revolver. He made a move towards his arsenal, but did not pick up a weapon, as he feared that any such action might be accompanied by the discharge of the revolver in McNeil's hand.

A Bird New to British Columbia.

Some time ago Capt. Cox, of the Cape Beale light, secured and forwarded to the Provincial Museum a specimen of the Gray Ring-bird ("Tyrannus dominicensis"), but its occurrence here being so unusual, Mr. Fannin forwarded it to Mr. Robert Ridgeway, curator of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, for identification. The bird has just been returned with a note from Mr. Ridgeway, in which he says: "It is certainly one of the last birds which might be expected to occur, even as a straggler, on Vancouver Island, since its true range is the West Indies, Southern Florida and points along the Gulf and Caribbean coasts of Central America." The museum is under obligations to Capt. Cox for this addition to the fauna of the province.

A Day at Port Angeles.

The 300 or 400 excursionsists who visited Port Angeles, Sunday, spent a thoroughly enjoyable day, both on the Olympian and in the bustling little city over the line. The fife and drum band of the Q. C. B. accompanied the steamer, and the Port Angeles band, with a delegation of citizens was at the wharf to welcome the excursionists on their arrival. During the stay of the Victorians their hospitable entertainers left nothing undone to promote their enjoyment, and the six hours given on shore were scarcely long enough to enable the Victoria people to enjoy to the full, the hopitality of the Port Angelites. Many expressions of surprise, as well as praise, were heard, as the splendid character of the breakwater, the harbor, the many fine blocks in erection, and the other evidences of substantial growth were noted. The new electric light system, the first pole for which was planted last Saturday, also came in for an expression of approval, and when the visitors left home, at 4 o'clock, they were a unit in the assertion that the day had been pleasantly spent.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Dedicatory Services—Sermons by Rev. Dr. Cochrane, Chairman of the Home Mission Board.

The re-opening services of the First Presbyterian church, on Pandora street, on Sunday, were of a most successful and auspicious character. In the first place, the day was an exceedingly beautiful one, and, as the sun shone through the windows of the well lighted and elegantly appointed edifice, it became abundantly manifest that the members and church authorities were thorough believers in the idea of the best for God. The church was well filled, the musical service was of a most attractive character, while the pulpit efforts of Rev. Dr. Cochrane, chairman of the Board of Home Missions, were eloquent and powerful, and withal peculiarly well adapted to the occasion. In the morning he preached from Psalm xxiv, v., 10, the entrance of the King of Glory into His Spiritual Kingdom. The preacher graphically described the pageants that formerly attended the return home of kingly conquerors or their triumphal entrances into the cities which they had captured. He spoke of Jerusalem as the city of the great king, where His temple had been established, and here was the re-opening of one of his temples and his entrance into it, as well as into the hearts of his worshippers. With much pathos he dwelt upon the personality of the King of Glory, about whom there was no need to ask. He was known by His scars, His wounds, His many crowns, His resurrection glory—the king of kings, the Lord of Lords. He now stood knocking at the hearts of every soul. Were they ready to let Him in and say: "Come in, thou blessed of the Lord!" He dwelt rather in individual hearts than in the most gorgeous human temples. Dr. Cochrane dwelt with much pathos and force upon the grand coronation day of the King, and inquired what part each of his hearers proposed to take in that illustrious occasion?

In the afternoon addresses to the juvenile members of the congregation were delivered by Rev. Dr. Reid, Rev. Dr. Cochrane and Mr. Teague.

At night Dr. Cochrane preached from Psalm lxxxiv, v 5, 6 and 7, "Blessed is the man whose strength is in Thee; in whose heart are the ways of them who passing through the valley of Baca made it a well; the rain also filleth the pools. They go from strength to strength; every one of them in Zion appeareth before God."

The collections morning and evening amounted to $417.40.

Last night a numerously attended and most pleasant social was given by the ladies of the congregation and their friends. After the usual material part of the entertainment had been disposed of, Rev. D. Fraser took the chair, or the platform, with him being Rev. Dr. Cochrane, Rev. C. Watson, Rev. M. L. Rugg, Rev. P. McF. Macleod, and Rev. Mr. Thompson. Letters of sympathy, coupled with regret for inability to attend, were read from Bishop Cridge and Rev. Mr. McCrae. After addresses had been delivered by Rev. Messrs. Thompson, Rugg and Watson, expressive of their pleasure at the progress and prosperity of the First Presbyterian church, of sympathy with its work and of their gratification at the re-opening of the newly renovated church, Rev. Dr. Cochrane dwelt at some length on the progress of Christian work in the Northwest Territories and in British Columbia. It used to be thought in the old country, he remarked, that as concerned Canada and and the United States anything in the shape of a minister was good enough. Now, the best men were wanted. He spoke of the most useful preachers—Spurgeon, in London, and Dr., in New York, as possessed not only of the highest education, but of the highest common sense and acquaintance with human nature. Then, on the part of the congregation, there were imperative requirements. These, as it had been expressed, were grit, grace, and greenbacks. They must be a praying and working congregation, and be ready to contribute in the most liberal way to church objects. He dwelt upon the satisfactory increases which had of late years been made to the contributions for church work, and advocated systematic giving, actuated by the governing principle of "He died for me."

Rev. Mr. Macleod, as representing the daughter church, congratulated the mother as having put on a new dress, and humorously took credit for his own church as having set the example in church building, which all had followed.

The speeches were varied by very well performed vocal selections and solos.

SAVE YOUR EYESIGHT.

Take Advantage of the Present Opportunity.

Be Wise in Time.

The fact that there is no resident professional optician this side of San Francisco is one reason why Mr. Seward's visit to this city and Portland, Oregon, has been so successful. In Victoria, aside from the large number of near-sighted, far-sighted, or old-sighted eyes, Mr. Seward has succeeded in correcting some twenty-five especially complicated defective cases, who had never before been able to have correct glasses adjusted, at any price. A portion of this work has been somewhat expensive, but the result has been satisfactory in all cases. A large number of prominent and influential citizens of Victoria have kindly volunteered the use of their names as reference. These, however, will not be published, as Mr. Seward's work speaks for itself and no further reference is now necessary. He has demonstrated, to the satisfaction of all concerned, his ability in adapting his superior lenses to any and all kinds of defective eyesight, and it remains only to state that he will leave for New York in a few weeks, and would therefore urge upon those intending to call the importance of doing so without delay. Office, corner Yates and Douglas streets, over Cochrane & Munn's drug store.

A CARD.

In answer to the number of communications from Vancouver, New Westminster, and Nanaimo, Mr. Seward begs to state that, in consequence of limited time, he will not be able to visit any of the above cities. He must be in New York in a few weeks.

"A PROSPEROUS CITY."

The Montreal Gazette, of the 3rd inst., contains the following article on the progress and prosperity of Victoria. It is so seldom that an eastern newspaper shows by any sign that it is aware of the existence of this city, that we could not resist the temptation of republishing the whola of the Gazette's appreciative article:

Hearing so much of the wonderful development of Vancouver, on the Pacific coast, which in five years has sprung from nothing to a bustling town of twelve or fifteen thousand inhabitants, people in the east are prone to forget the existence of the older city on the island, the capital of the province, which, also, is making progress at a rapid rate, though its hopes of being the terminus of the trans-continental railway have long since faded into nothingness. The population of Victoria, which in 1881 was only 7,300, is now put at 22,000. This represents an increase during the decade at the rate of 200 per cent., something that not many places on the continent can excel. According to the report of the Board of Trade, the growth of population has been accompanied by a corresponding increase in the value of the property, which, as regards real estate, advanced 100 per cent. within the twelve months. The construction of the railway to Nanaimo has been an important factor in bringing about this result, and, as it is extended to other parts of the island of Vancouver, no doubt the capital will continue to develop in wealth and population. The flow of immigration into the province is reported to be on an increasing scale, but it is not equal to the demand for labor. Though the report of the board does not say so, it is plain that the Chinese were regarded as a valuable addition to the population, affording a supply of unskilled workmen, the decrease in which is evidently a cause of inconvenience. British Columbia is peculiarly blessed in the matter of material resources. The ocean, the field, the mine and the forest are all stored with wealth, and the island of Vancouver more, perhaps, than the mainland, is calculated to profit therefrom. This is directly to Victoria's advantage. The exports from its harbor last year were $3,143,178, all but $120,000 being the produce of Canada. Great Britain took fully two-thirds of this, mostly the result of the fisheries, including 338,500 cases of salmon, and some $202,000 worth of sealskins, the contribution to the national wealth of twenty four schooners who think the ocean's inhabitants are the free property of whoever can lay their hands thereon. The total exports from the province were valued at $4,334,306. The imports were valued at $3,215,558, the duty collected being $828,930, so that in the Finance Minister's estimation Victoria is no mean city. One of the most satisfactory things in the report is the statement that the establishment of flour mills of modern type and of large producing capacity has given an impetus to agriculture and to the consequent settlement of large tracts of land suitable for wheat growing which were previously held of comparatively small value. The local government recognizes the importance of assisting in this work and is making explorations of lands suited for farming through out the province. Mining, too, is an important industry, but it is retarded from lack of exact knowledge of the nature and area of the deposits and deficient railway communication. This brings forward the province's needs as set out by the Victorians. Beginning with small things, these are an enlarged graving dock, increased harbor accommodation, better regulations for preserving the salmon fishery, a survey of the fishing banks, and of the mineral areas, railroads, population, the settlement of the Behring's Sea dispute and reciprocity with the United States. Canadian enterprise or the Canadian Government can provide the majority of these. The last two depend on the temper of another nation's rulers, and one of them at least just now seems further off than ever. At any rate, Victoria's Board of Trade report indicates that it is not lagging backward in the race of progress, and is not likely to.

THE FAR NORTH.

Arrival of the Steamer Mexico—News from the Cassiar Mines—Alaska Mining News.

Steamer Mexico arrived from the north on Sunday evening, and after a brief stay left for Port Townsend.

The Alaska Free Press of latest dates contains the following:

A miner, just arrived from Forty-Mile creek, in the Yukon country, brought out with him the massive head and horns of a reindeer, which will be sent to the World's fair, at Chicago, as a relic from Alaska.

Mr. Price, foreman at the Ophir group in Berner's Bay, reports a force of thirty men at work on these claims, and work progressing rapidly. The company operating these mines proposes to develop them thoroughly first, and if they prove of sufficient value, a large plant of machinery will be erected for the reduction of the ores next summer. The mill will be located near the beach. From the mill a narrow gauge railway will be run up to the head of the valley, the line, at short intervals, to be connected with the mines by short tramways, with ore bins established at such points of intersection.

Mr. Wm. Venator, representing the syndicate now engaged in opening up the Shuck placer mines, reports work progressing as fast as possible under the circumstances. A sluiceway tunnel is being driven in to tap the lower basin. The tunnel starts in 18 feet above high tide, has an upward incline of four inches in twelve feet; it will be about 700 feet in length, and will connect with the basin, which is 106 feet above salt water level, with an incline shaft. This basin, above the head of the tunnel, contains an area of sixty acres, and the gravel deposit, estimated by sinking shafts, to be thirty feet or more in depth. For working purposes, a pressure of 296 feet, and if necessary 300 feet, can be had, with an abundance of water for all hydraulicing purposes. The ditch work above has all been completed, but the flumes, tanks and pipe lines yet remain to be put in. In addition to this ground, the same company also owns the upper basin, 2,000 feet above salt water level, containing 20 acres, which it is proposed to work also in the near future.

The Shuck placer mines were discovered in 1876, some years before the discovery of Silver Bow basin, and a number of men engaged in placer mining there. From the lower basin it is estimated that about $30,000 in gold dust has been taken out, and from the upper basin about $6,000.

CASSIAR.

The Mexico on her way down called at Wrangel, and brought down the following passengers:—Messrs. Metcalfe, of McDames Creek; Jas. Porter, Dease Lake, and McLane and Mat Richards, of Dease Creek. Mr. Metcalfe is an old miner, but of late has been managing Messrs. Galbraith, Grant & Cook's store at McDames. He says the summer has not been an exceedingly profitably one, although the miners are fairly satisfied. Prospects were not bright on Quartz Creek, although the Chinamen continue to take out fairly good wages. Five white men on McDames Creek only made "grub" during the summer. He is of the opinion that the diggings have been pretty well worked out.

Judge Sheppard, who took up a party and a lot of machinery to Middle Creek in the spring, has done very well as far as can be heard, but he is very reticient. He had his ditches and machinery in working order when Mr. Metcalf passed down, and intended to wash up in a few days. Seven new clearings have been taken up on the Stickeen, among them a very profitable looking one by Mr. Carl.

Gardening on McDame's Creek is now becoming quite a business among the Chinamen, who during the past summer raised over 200,000 pounds of potatoes, and a lot of other vegetables.

A large number of miners had come into Telegraph Creek camp for the winter when Mr. Metcalf passed that place, and others will come in before the winter closes them in.

BY MARION HARLAND.

May was content to wait for the morrow's meeting with her pet. Hester was wild with impatience to be again with her worshiped friend. Hetty might remonstrate, and her mother entreat her not to intrude upon the family on the evening of the travelers' arrival. The spoiled child was unmanageable. She could not sleep a wink, she protested, until she had kissed Miss May, and exchanged reports of the week's separating them from the dear every-day intercourse. She would take with her the portfolio she had almost worked herself ill to fill with what May must think showed diligent endeavor to improve.

"Then, there is the great news to tell!"

"Wouldn't it be well to wait awhile before speaking of that?"dissuaded the! mother.

"It is a week old, already!" Hester pouted, "And I said never a word to Mrs. Gilchrist yesterday. "The Seasons"—the mot de famille at the Gilchrists' for brother and sister—"are our only own friends, mamma. You can trust them to hold their tongues!"

"What seems a great event to us will be small to them," cautioned Mrs. Wayt—then gave Hester her way.

Nine o'clock saw her in Homer's charge on the orchard-road, the shortest, as it was the most secluded to the Gilchrist place.

"Where are you taking me, Tony?" she aroused from a happy, expectant reverie to ask, midway.

The aftermath of the June mowing was tall by now, and the chair was almost hidden in it.

"Now—I don' keer fur ter take ye near that big tree. Tain't wholesome nor proper!" grunted the charioteer. He was slightly afraid of the testy little damsel, and took on doughty airs at times to disprove a fact. "We'll soon git inter the path agi'n."

"But I won't stand this!" cried Hester, irate. "Go back to the path! Not wholesome! not proper! What do you mean?"

"Now—I seen the light there oftener'n anywheres else"—Homer was beginning, when they were hailed by a well-known voice.

"What are you doing over there?" called March.

"Swimming for our lives," returned Hester. "Won't you dive, and drag me out by the hair of my head?"

Her tone was tremulous with delight. As he took her hand, it quivered like a poplar-leaf in his large, cordial grasp. He was fond of Hester on her own account, fonder of her because he linked her with Hetty. He had strolled down the street with his cigar after giving his mother a detailed account of the pleasure-making of the last three weeks. He felt the heat inland to be oppressive after the surf-breeze. His mother was glad that his saunter was not in the direction of the parsonage. She knew nothing of the short cut from the back street or, with what ease an athlete of six-and-twenty could vault a five-barred fence. Besides, was not her boy a cured and discharged patient?

The meeting with Hester, if not the best thing he had hoped for, was so much better than a solitary ramble in dream-haunted grounds, that he greeted her joyously. It was not the first time the idea had come to him of making a confidante of the keen-witted, deep-hearted child, but it suddenly took the shape of determination.

"Going to see May!" he echoed her reply to his next question. "She is tired out, and has gone to her room by this. She means to claim you for the whole of to-morrow. Give me a little chat in our arbor instead, and I will take you home. I have not seen you for an age, and I have something very interesting to me and important to you, to say to you."

She laughed up in his face in sheer pleasure.

"And I have something particularly interesting to me, and not important to you, to tell in return. We have an event in our family—an agreeable happening as to results, although it comes by a dark and crooked road—or so mamma persists in saying."

March had propelled her into the open track and stopped as she said this to lean forward and peer into the saucy face. A disagreeable—an absurd—thrill passed over him. Had he lost Hetty?

"An event! Accomplished or prospective?"

"Both!" chuckled Hester.

"Is it an engagement?" bringing out the word courageously.

The question was never answered. A vigorous onward push had brought them into the moonlit area surrounding the king apple tree. Thor rushed forward, bellowing ferociously at a long, black body that lay half under, half beyond the dipping outward branches, now weighted almost to the ground with growing fruit.

"Homer!" shouted March to the figure retreating toward the garden. "Come back! hurry!" And, hastily, to Hester: "I will send you home with him and go for the police. Don't be frightened. It is only a drunken tramp, or may be, asleep. In either case he can not stay here. These are my father's grounds."

Hester had not uttered a sound, but the slight figure, bent toward the recumbent one, had a strained intensity of expression words could not have conveyed. Her eyes were fixed, as by the fascination of horrified dread—one small hand plucked oddly at her throat.

"Take her home, Homer!" March ordered, "and say nothing to alarm the ladies. I'll attend to him!"

"No! no! no!" shrilled Hester in an unearthly tone that made him start. "You must go home! you! you! and say nothing! tell nobody! O God of mercy, it has come at last! Don't touch him!" her voice rising into a husky shriek. For, parting the boughs, March passed to the head of the prostrate man, and stooped to raise him. His quick eye had perceived that he was well-dressed and no common tramp in figure, also that he had lain, not fallen, where he was found. In bending to take hold of him, he detected, even in the intensity of his excitement, the peculiar, heavy, close odor of drugs that had hung in the air on the Fourth of July night. In company with a policeman, our young artist had once visited a Chinese "opium dive" in New York, and he recognized the smell now.

Homer was beside him, and lent intelligent aid.

"Now," he drawled, without the slightest evidence of alarm. "I mos'ly lif's him up so-fashion!"

The action brought the features into a rift of moonlight.

"Great Heavens!" broke from March in a low tone of horror and dismay. "It is Mr. Wayt!"

Laying him back on the turf he went back to Hester and seized the bar of her chair.

"You must go home! You must not see him, my poor child! It is your father, and he is very ill—unconscious. Not a moment is to be lost. I must go for a doctor immediately!"

"Let go!"

Beside herself with fury, she actually struck at the hand grasping the propeller; her eyes flashed fire; her accents, hardly louder than a wheezing whisper, were jerky gasps, painful to hear.

"Let go, I say' and do you go to your safe, decent home, as I told you! Tony and I are used to this sort of thing!"

"Hester! you do not know what you are saying!" March came around and faced her, trying to quiet her by cold, stern authority.

It was thrown away. She raved on—still tearing with her tiny, fierce hands at her heaving throat as if to give speech freer vent.

"I do know! Oh, we are graduates in these frolicsome escapades! It is inconsiderate in him—" with a horrid laugh—"to give his wife, his wife's sister and the family factotum such a job as carrying him all this way. To do him justice, he seldom forgets the decencies so entirely. If I had my way, he should lie here all night. Only his wife would come out and stay with him. What are you staring at me for, Mr. Gilchrist? Here is our family skeleton! Does it frighten you out of your wits?"

Her croaks of laughter threatened dissolution to the fragile frame. It was an awful, a repulsive exhibition.

"It is you who have lost yours!" rejoined March, gravely. "Your father may be dying for aught you know. A hundred men fell in the streets of New York to-day, overcome by the heat—and we are wasting precious minutes in wild, nonsensical talk. If you will let Homer take you to the house, and compose yourself sufficiently to prepare your mother for the shock of seeing her husband brought in insensible, we may save him yet. Go! and send Homer back at once."

The wild eyes surveyed him piercingly; with a low, meaning laugh, she sank back among her cushions.

"I think—" she said distinctly and deliberately—"that you are the best man God ever made! Go on, Tony!"

Left alone with the unconscious man, March stooped and rolled him entirely over. He had been lying face downward, his cheek to the sward; one arm was by his side, the other was thrown in a natural position above his head. His pulse was almost normal, although somewhat sluggish; his respiration heavy, but not stertorous; his complexion was not sanguine. His breath, and, March feared, his whole body, reeked of opium. March shook him

A BY-LAW

For raising the sum of $45,000.00 for the purchase of a market site.

WHEREAS it is expedient to establish a Public Market in the City of Victoria.

And whereas it is estimated that the cost of acquiring land suitable for a site therefor in said city will be $45,000, which sum it is proposed to raise by way of loan upon the credit of the City as hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $2,198.50 to be raised annually by special rate for paying the debt intended to be hereby created and the interest thereof.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Corporation, according to the last revised assessment roll, is $9,358,191, irrespective of any future increase of the rateable property of the municipality and of any income in the nature of tolls, interest, or dividends from the work, or from any stock, shares or interest in the work upon which the money so to be raised or any part thereof is intended to be invested, and also irrespective of any income from the temporary investment of the sinking fund or any part thereof.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the principal of the said debt intended to be hereby created according to the Municipality Act, 1889, and amending Act, an annual special rate of 23-1000 of 1 per cent. in the dollar will be required.

And whereas it is intended to reduce the general rate so that the said special rate shall not increase the total rate of taxation.

It shall be lawful for the said Mayor to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required either in currency or sterling money not less than $500, or the sterling equivalent of that sum, each and all such debentures shall be sealed with the common seal of the said Corporation and signed by the Mayor.

3. The said debentures shall be made payable in 50 years from the date hereinafter mentioned for this by-law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Corporation, City Hall, Victoria, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of the interest.

PORT ANGELES

What has been Done at Port Angeles During the Last Twelve Months.

It has been made a Port of Entry. It has been made the County Seat of Clallam County. The population has increased from 300 to 3,000. The U. P. Railway Company have built a large wharf costing $10,000, and now run a daily boat. One year ago Port Angeles had a weekly mail, now it has a daily mail. One year ago Port Angeles had one four-page paper now it has two—one a 16-page the other 8—both well edited. The town has been incorporated and a Town Council elected. A contract has been let for $75,000 worth of street work which is now well under way. A franchise has been granted for a system of electric light work, the poles for which are already on the ground. An application is now before the Council for a franchise for a system of water works and gas works, which will be granted next Thursday night, and the work will be started immediately. One year ago Port Angeles had one store, now it has two dozen. A syndicate of New York capitalists has been formed who intend to build a Railroad to Port Angeles and connect with Victoria by ferry; they will commence operations early in the new year.

Now is the time to invest in Port Angeles as property is advancing all the time and is bound to advance right along. There is no city on the Sound that has advanced as much as Port Angeles in proportion to its size during the last year. We have a large list of Port Angeles property for sale in Lots, Blocks or Acres on terms in reach of all.

If you wish to invest now is your time, you will never have another such opportunity. Call and see us, it costs nothing to look at maps and get prices. During the last year we have handled nearly a million dollars worth of Port Angeles property, and there is not a man to-day who can not get from 50 to 100 per cent. more than he paid. Call in early and often.

City Police Court.

There was a full dock and a full auditorium at the police court, yesterday morning, the crowd having evidently been attracted by the prospect of hearing the investigation in the Chinese murder case, as the non appearance of Ah Ling among the other prisoners caused an expression of disgust to flit over the faces of the spectators. Mike Kelly and Wm. Sullivan, both charged with being drunk, were first dealt with. Kelly pleaded guilty, but asked for a little time in which to make up the fine; Sullivan thought that he was not "wholly drunk—only just about half." The two, with an Indian, charged with the same offence, were sent "down" for one month.

Then came a case of blockading the sidewalk, in which a remand was granted until Thursday.

John Carl and T. McDonald were next called, charged with highway robbery, the informant in the case being one John Smith. Mr. E. Wootton (Wilson & Wootton) appeared for the defence and pleaded "not guilty." On the request of the defence, this case also was laid over till Thursday.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

THE PAPER CHASE.

Despite the fact that Saturday last was decidedly wet, it did not prevent the ladies and gentleman who had arranged to take part in the paper chase, having one of the best across country runs they have yet enjoyed. The trail was taken up at Mr. Pemberton's, and led the hunters across fields, fences and brush; down roads and along the seashore, for a total distant of ten or a dozen miles. The hares, Messrs. Pemberton and Ward left a well defined trail, but eluded capture. They were found waiting for the hunters near the Jewish cemetary.

POLO.

There will be a meeting at Dr. Duncan's office, at 5 o'clock this afternoon, for the purpose of organizing a polo club. Polo is a first-class fall sport, and, as there is ample material here, there is no reason why the city should not have a good club.

YACHTING.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club, of England, has decided to offer an international challenge cup of the approximate value of £500. The America's cup, under some of the provisions of the new deed of gift, has not been a sufficient inducement to venture a trip across the Atlantic. The offer of the Royal Victoria Yacht club is chiefly for the benefit of American yachtsmen.

HERE AND THERE.

The next sporting attraction will be the boat race between McLean of Westminster and McKay of this city, which is to come off next Saturday afternoon on the Victoria harbor course. Both men are training hard and are in good condition.

WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN.

The horse show at Chicago concluded Saturday evening, having met with great success in a financial way, over 5,000 people having paid admission to the building. Rosebury, the dun gelding, broke the world's record by jumping 7 feet 2½ inches, or one inch over the record.

DIVISIONAL COURT.

(Present Justices McCreight and Walkem.)

The case of Cowan & Shaw vs. McPherson was called, being an appeal from a decision of Mr. Justice Drake, who refused to make an order in a British Columbia case to stay proceedings pending the decision of an issue in an Ontario action, which was claimed to be an offset to the present action. Mr. H. D. Helmcken appeared for the appellants and Mr. E. V. Bodwell for the respondent. Judgment was reserved.

The appeal in the case of Turner, Beeton & Co. vs. Gray was dismissed.
